

BIO (123 WORDS) – ERIKA MEITNER

Erika Meitner is the author of Inventory at the All-Night Drugstore (Anhinga Press, 2003), Ideal Cities (HarperCollins, 2010), which was a 2009 National Poetry series winner, and Makeshift Instructions for Vigilant Girls, published by Anhinga Press in March 2011. Meitner's poems have been anthologized widely, and have appeared most recently in APR, Tin House, Virginia Quarterly Review, Indiana Review, The New Republic, and on Slate.com. She has received fellowships from the Wisconsin Institute for Creative Writing, the Virginia Center for the Creative Arts, Blue Mountain Center, and the Sewanee Writers' Conference. She is currently an assistant professor of English at Virginia Tech, where she teaches in the MFA program, and is also completing her doctorate in Religious Studies at the University of Virginia.

BIO (82 WORDS) – ERIKA MEITNER

Erika Meitner is the author of Inventory at the All-Night Drugstore (Anhinga Press, 2003), and Ideal Cities (HarperCollins, 2010), which was a 2009 National Poetry series winner. Her most recent collection, Makeshift Instructions for Vigilant Girls, was published by Anhinga Press in March 2011. Meitner's poems have appeared most recently in Tin House, Virginia Quarterly Review, Indiana Review, The New Republic, and on Slate.com. She is currently an assistant professor of English at Virginia Tech, where she teaches in the MFA program.